Fashion Show raises over $6,000 for Hannah's Home

TEQUESTA, Fla. (Apr. 27, 2022) – RENU Medical Aesthetics hosted its third annual Fashion Night benefitting Hannah's Home of South Florida. With 100 attendees, the charity event raised over $6,000 for the single, pregnant young women under the Home's care.

"It was wonderful to see the community come together to revel in the fashion and fun to support such a deserving charity, Hannah's Home," said Dr. Valerie Barrett, owner of RENU.

The event had food and beverages, live performances, auctions and a fashion show featuring unique pieces by local designers.

Dr. Barrett says she cannot wait until next year. "Fashion Night was a great success and a beautiful show of spectacular haute couture," she said.

The models were dressed in a variety of styles from luxury streetwear to wearable macramé. Founder and chief operating officer of One Joli Girl, Ingrid Joli, played a critical role in the event as a modeling coach. She empowered the models while teaching them how to conduct themselves on the runway.

Similarly, Hannah's Home empowers young women facing the many challenges of unplanned pregnancies. Residents in the program often bring with them histories of abuse and neglect.

The residential program at Hannah's Home provides food, clothing and medical care. Since its doors opened in 2011, 70 infants have found a home at Hannah's Home. With a maximum capacity of eight women and their children, Hannah's Home is currently serving six resident mothers, with three infants on the way.
